EnActe School of Drama is the educational arm of the renowned Bay Area theatre company EnActe Arts, Inc., an organization dedicated to global storytelling and diverse voices. The primary philosophy of the School of Drama is that the skills provided by film and theatre arts are applicable, practical, and integral to the development of any career in any field. EnActe teaches more than drama; we teach a new way of thinking to radically shift the way we think about the correlation between art and technology.

In this course, students will develop a character through physicality and vocality, learning empathy, immersion, and articulation. Then, they will be recorded virtually in sync with a pre-animated piece, and their voices dubbed (using ADR -- automated dialogue replacement) onto the clip. This class teaches them the process of animation (providing a general overview of the technology) and sound recording, as well as aids in performance as well. Final Project: A short clip featuring an animated character speaking with their voice! Check out more info here! <https://youtu.be/RdWNkLOQcWg>

Writing is an essential tool for communication. Students can express their thoughts, ideas, and feelings effectively by learning to write. They can communicate through written notes, letters, or messages, allowing them to share their experiences and connect with others. Writing enhances language development.
